Thanks to Ken and Jane Cox for hosting this training event

Margaret Lear set up her specialist nursery "Plants with Purpose" in 2001 on the back of a garden design and consultancy service aimed at making gardens and horticulture more sustainable. She continues to be involved in education and runs her own range of training courses (further details via www.plantswithpurpose.co.uk).

The Pollination Workshop will explore the relationship between flowers and insects, with especial regard to bees and orchard fruits, but with wider applications too. It will be suitable for anyone interested in getting the best from an orchard or doing the best for our bees!

There will be refreshments on arrival and an indoor session to learn about the science of pollination. This will be followed by a walk round the Garden Centre grounds to discuss the subject more generally. After lunch (included in the cost of the workshop), there will be an optional guided blossom walk to Glendoick Gardens themselves. Tickets for this can be purchased independently on the day (£4 each) in the Garden Centre restaurant.
